

Transmit to FSC – Validation Report: What it Means and Retention Requirements

The validation report that is generated during the Transmit to FSC process does not signify that the transmission was successfully completed. The report only means that the data is validated and ready to be transmitted; if the process is interrupted, the transmission is not complete.

There is no actual report that signifies a successful transmission. When transmission is successfully completed, the files will disappear from the Transmit to FSC browser.

There is no finance requirement for retaining the Validation Report at the unit, however, it can be a valuable report in communicating the completion of validation when multiple users are sharing responsibility for a single node.
